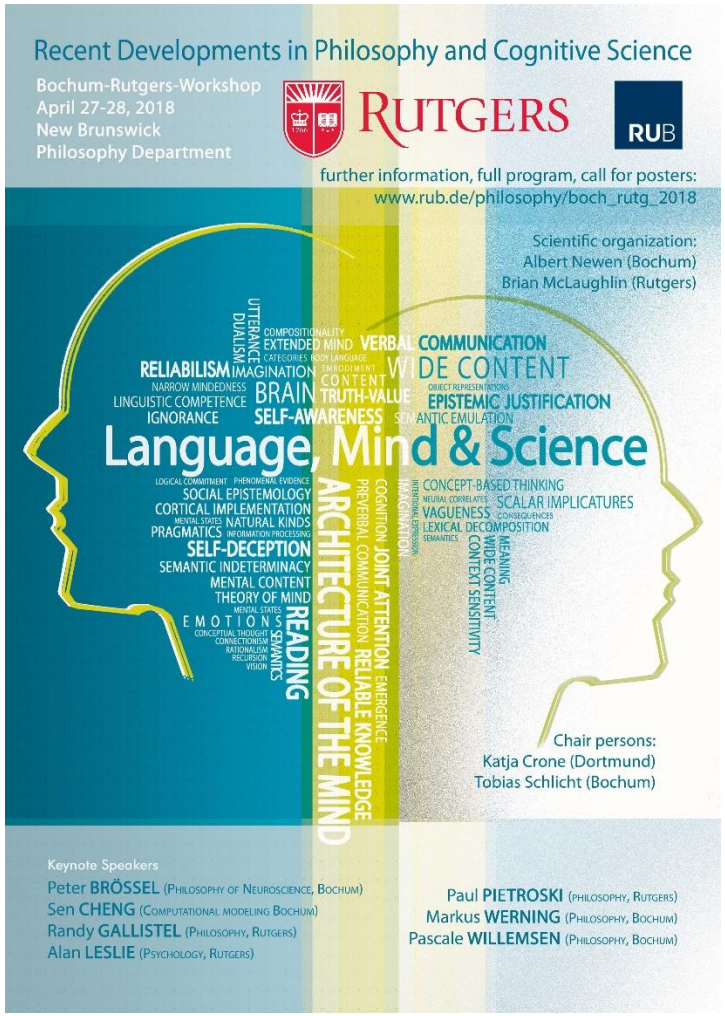
Venue & How to get there:

Rutgers University
106 Somerset Street
Philosophy Department, Floor 5
New Brunswick, NJ 08827

(very close to the New Brunswick station). Please look up the map:
http://www.philosophy.rutgers.edu/76-general/directions/732-map

Rutgers-Bochum Conference

Friday, April 27th – Saturday 28th, 2018
New Brunswick, State University of New Jersey,
Philosophy seminar room



Organizers: Brian McLaughlin (Rutgers, Department of Philosophy, RuCCS), and Albert Newen (RUB, Institute of Philosophy II)

Friday, April 27th, 2018

9.30 – 10.40	Alan Leslie (Rutgers): Action Theory and Agents
10.40 – 11.20	Julia Wolf (Bochum): Modelling Implicit False-Belief Understanding
11.20 – 11.40	Coffee
11:40 – 12.50	Peter Brössel (Bochum): Reserve Inference in Neuroscience as Inference to Best Systematization
12.50 – 14.40	Lunch
14.40 – 15.20	Luke Roelofs (Bochum): Low-level simulation, Unconscious Inference, and Implicit Belief: How Can Mental-state Types Cross Levels?
15.20 - 16.00	Isaac Wilhelm (Rutgers): The Ontology of Mechanisms
16.00 – 16.20	Coffee
16.20 – 17.30	Randy Gallistel (Rutgers): Pre-Linguistic Thought
17.30 – 18.30	Pascale Willemsen (Bochum): Alternative Possibilities and the Action/Omission Asymmetry
19.00	Dinner

Saturday, April 28th, 2018

10.00 – 11.10	Sen Cheng (Bochum): Modelling Neural Mechanisms Underlying Episodic Memory
11.10 – 11.30	Coffee
11.30 – 12.40	Markus Werning (Bochum): Predicting the Past. On the Epistemic Generativity of Memory
12.40 – 14.00	Lunch
14.00 – 14.40	Veronica Gomez (Rutgers): Idealization and Explanation in Computational Cognitive Science: the Case of Bayesian Modeling.
14.40 – 15.20	Robin Löhr (Bochum): Concepts and Categorization Devices
15.20 – 16.00	Kelsey Laity-D'Agostino (Rutgers): Language Acquisition and Scaler Implicature: What Have We Learned?
16.00 – 16.20	Coffee
16.20 – 17.30	Paul Pietroski (Rutgers): Confronting Existential Angst